Dear Mr. Rojas:

Earlier this year my 93 year old mother underwent a right total knee replacement by physicians at Vero Orthopaedics. Three days after surgery she was discharged from the hospital to Atlantic HealthCare Center. Over the next 14 days she received intensive professional physical therapy that permitted her to return to as assisted living facility. She had a dramatic functional recovery.

However, several months later, due to a totally unrelated medical condition, she was readmitted to the hospital. Again she made a remarkable recovery but it was apparent to the two of us that she could not return to an assisted living environment. After discussing the situation with her, I made an indepth evaluation of the opportunities available in our community for her. Atlantic HealthCare Center was the name that continued to be put forward as the top quality facility.

At this point her move to your facility has been flawless. All encounters with the business office, the nursing staff, the rehabilitation department, and the social relations area have been impeccable. Our impression and experience has indeed personified dignity and excellence. Your compassion, competence and professionalism are appreciated by us.

Sincerely,

James L Cain MD
